

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR GUN RIGHTS

STANDING UP FOR FREEDOM
DEFENDING THE SECOND AMENDMENT

Executive Biography for Dudley Brown, President of the National Association for Gun Rights and Rocky Mountain Gun Owners

Dudley Brown has nearly three decades of professional experience in political activism with 25 years as a gun lobbyist, firearms instructor, and expert in American firearms laws and legislation.

Originally from South Dakota, Dudley has been a resident of Colorado for most of his life.

He founded Rocky Mountain Gun Owners in 1996, which is one of the most successful -- and feared -- state gun rights groups in the country. Throughout his career, Dudley has worked in the trenches of State Legislatures across the nation as a leader for gun rights.

In 2013, Dudley and RMGO helped efforts to recall 3 Colorado lawmakers from office for their part in supporting gun control in Colorado, one of whom immediately resigned office in the wake of RMGO's successful grassroots lobbying.

Dudley was named as CEO of the National Association for Gun Rights in 2007 and has grown the group from a forceful yet small grassroots organization, into the 2nd largest gun rights group in the nation.

Under Dudley's leadership, the National Association for Gun Rights has run grassroots lobbying campaigns in all 50 states, and deploys experienced operators all across the country.

In 2013, Dudley and NAGR led the charge in Washington, D.C. to kill the Toomey-Machin universal gun registration bill. In light of Dudley's success in lobbying the U.S. Senate to vote down every piece of gun control legislation, the Huffington Post declared the National Association for Gun Rights, "the new sheriff in town."

During this legislative battle, NAGR outspent the NRA and successfully established their D.C. office, while maintaining their headquarters in Colorado.

As of 2019, the National Association for Gun Rights has grown to 4.5 million members nationwide, and has multiple active state affiliates across the country.

According to NewsMax, Dudley is one of the Top 10 most influential gun lobbyists in the country.
